Oct 17, 2012

Three large-scale sculptures by visual arts faculty member Jon Isherwood were unveiled last month at the Songzhuang Art Museum in Beijing, China. The pieces (at right) are sculpted from Indian red granite ("Prophecy"), China black granite ("The Move's On"), and white marble ("Swan Song"), and will be on view through the end of the year.

Isherwood's work was also recently installed at the deCorva Sculpture Park and Museum in Lincoln, MA—where five pieces will be on view through 2013—and on the campus of Rhode Island College in Providence, RI (at bottom right).
