

GALLEY
11/19/68

The Living Theatre is dead, maybe it can be revived. For a good long time, this "spontaneous" production has been presented to audiences in Europe and the U. S. Every time it's the same. We've all read the news stories, so we can predict the outcome: the audience taking off their clothes and joining the "actors" on stage for an orgy. How about something unexpected? Like, we could all be on stage before they get there. We could be having some nude sit-in, body-painting session, or mud fight. The the Living Theatre would have to be really spontaneous and witty because they'd be the uptight audience. Are we going to let John Lennon outdo us?

Lana Ross Twubs
Mrs. Coplan
Alice
Paisley Superstar
Sean R. Snotley
Yves, Rogét, and Bill