BENNINGTON COLLEGE MUSIC DIVISION

Presents

A RECITAL

By

MASTER'S CANDIDATE, EDWARD HINES

Sunday
June 13, 1982

2:00 p.m.
Greenwall Music Workshop

Sonata #2

Andante
Vivace
Alla Siciliano Cantabile
Spiritoso ed Allegro

Marianne Finckel, Harpsichord
Jeffrey Levine, Continuo
Edward Hines, Bassoon

Parable for Solo Bassoon

Edward Hines

Son (1981)

Peter Golub, Piano

- INTERMISSION -

Quatre Resonances

Edward Hines, Bassoon

Duolo

Wendy Greenwald, Flute

Edward Hines, Bassoon

Dear Ann Landers (1981)
(Can a dog get drunk on wine?)

Bette Goldberg, Soprano
Chris Watson, Kris Karlsson, Piano

* This Concert is being presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Master of Fine Arts Degree.
DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Can a dog get drunk on wine? I need to know.

Our golden retriever sleeps in the laundry room, which is adjacent to the wine cellar. I noticed that some mornings Happy came staggering into the kitchen very slowly, even bumping into things. I thought at first he might be having eye trouble. We took him to the vet. Happy's eyes are O.K.

Last week when Happy didn't show up for breakfast, I went down to get him. He was passed out next to a keg of wine. The spigot had been turned just a little enough so there was a very slow trickle. As I was standing there trying to figure what to do, (Happy) awakened and behaved like a person with a hangover.

That very morning I had the keg of wine moved to a (higher) shelf, out of his reach. Happy has not behaved (strangely) since. (Could) it be that the dog was getting inebriated?

M.F.R.

Dear M.F.R.

Animals can get plastered, just like humans. Alcohol affects their brains the same way. It's a good thing you discovered the source of the problem before Happy began to crave a hair of a dog that bit him.

*****

---NEWSDAY, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1973

Used with permission.