Dear Kit,

Many thanks indeed for helpful close scrutiny given to the documents anent Grace Armstrong and associates. Many good points, from which I shall hope to profit. Particularly was interested in your notions as to the total direction you anticipated (as regards "fall").

Am enclosing a document which the Director at Indiana asked us Fellows to help get scattered. Just in case you thought it might find a place on a local bulletin board.

Meanwhile, jes think: I'm a Book Foundling! Both Gramma and Red Ear-Ache. Too bad I dint also have the ~~Sin~~-Ballix finished.

Am also enclosing a chart I used in connection with my plugs for Dramatismus, during a two-day fiesta on "models for organizational behavior" at Princeton. The best models, of course, would have been those used by the California Fruit Growers Association - but since we were savants, ours had to be bearded. All told, wd. say: I came home not hating myself a bit. I think Dramatismus can take care of his rummy ole self quite well. (All the others, as vs. the approach via "action," spontaneously began with concerns in the "learning" category - and we were quick to quickly and graciously point out that maybe ~~the~~ ^{their} approach was ~~due~~ due, not necessarily to the nature of the material, but to their "occupational psychosis" as teachers. 'Twould seem they hadna thoughta that. But by the time they regained their balance, I was home taking pills.)

Best greetings, to self and Tommy, and to my colligs, both genuwine and problematical.

Sincerely,

K.B.
