The Penitentes are a sect that believes in purification from sin through severe penance. Even today, in both Old and New Mexico, they practise their ancient rites, including the crucifixion. The dance bears no factual relationship to these practices, but is done rather as a story told after the manner of the old minstrels. The three figures enter, assume their characters, and perform as a group of players acting in a Mystery Play. The action is divided by a return to the entrance theme. The Festival Dance at the end is a version of a popular dance of celebration without ritualistic content.

"DEATHS AND ENTRANCES"

Music Hunter Johnson
Artistic Collaboration Arch Lauterer
Costumes Edythe Gilfond

This is a legend of the heart's life. The action takes place in a room and the halls of an ancient house. It concerns three sisters, "doom eager", as the three Bronte sisters were "doom eager", to fulfill their destiny.

It concerns the restless pacings of the heart on some winter evening. There are remembrances of childhood, certain dramatizations of well-known objects, dreams of romance, hatreds bred of longings and madness. It is "imagination kindled at antique fires".

There are "Deaths and Entrances" of hopes, fears, remembrances, dreams, and there is ultimate vision.

This is essentially a legend of poetic experience rather than a story of incident. In the secret life of the heart there are invisible actors and "Deaths and Entrances" with no barriers of period or time. Rather, there is a suspension of time and subsequent intensification of experience at the sight of some simple remembered object; a shell, a glass goblet, a vase.

The characters are:

The three sisters: Martha Graham
Sophie Maslow
Jane Dudley

The three remembered children: Nina Fonaroff
Pearl Lang
Marjorie Mazia

The dark beloved: Erick Hawkins

The poetic beloved: Merce Cunningham

The cavaliers: John Butler
Richard Hylton

The title is a line from a poem by Dylan Thomas:

This is not the literal circus of canvas and sawdust ring but a circus of ridiculous situations and silly behaviors. In every woman there is the desire to be featured in a "star turn," as the apex of a triangle and as the beloved of a duet. In the life of every woman there is some force which, however temporarily, holds the whip hand. Throughout the circus of her life every woman is her own most appreciative spectator. In this circus of the silly woman's life, the sum total of episodes and of interludes does not add up to mature dignity but to a tragic, addled confusion.
