"How can I win the game of tick-tack toe?"

It is well known that I cannot, if I assume that my opponent understands the game perfectly. I can win only by giving a radical meaning to the word "win." I can hit my opponent over the head; or I can falsify the records. Every way in which I "win" involves, in some sense, an abandonment of the game, as we intuitively understand it. I can also, of course, openly abandon the game - refuse to play it.

- Garrett Hardin

Thanks:

To my mother & father for their love and support. The cast, production crew, and design team for their hard work and dedication. The drama faculty & staff. Chris Edwards for stage combat consultation, Steven Sorman, VAPA Sculpture Studio, and you.
