PLAYWRIGHT AND DIRECTOR NOTES

The Fingerprints company approached this work knowing that a huge challenge would be ahead of us. We gathered together with the script and began asking questions from the heart before jumping straight into rehearsal. We examined over and over again one question: What would our lives be like if we couldn't reach the thing we wanted most? Rather than attempt to find one solid answer for that question, we have embraced with open hearts and open minds all the questions the play raises. The production you will see tonight has been a work in process for all of us.

We are completely filled with gratitude for every single person involved in this process. We would like to thank Sherry, for bringing us all together as a company, and Jama, for keeping the Festival running smoothly. Our cast has developed as an ensemble from the first time on their feet and we are especially grateful for their patience, hard work, and talent. They possess full, brave hearts for the work and each other. The designers are to be commended for their creative, careful and flexible construction of the show. We are appreciative of the drama faculty's helpful insight and support. And we are endlessly, endlessly thankful for Tina; without her presence, organization and understanding we would be a complete disaster.

Fingerprints is dedicated to the families of Shari Faye Smith, Debra May Helmick, and to all those who are missing loved ones.

The Playwright would also like to thank the following for their encouragement, guidance, love and support:

Dan Day
Kimberly Field
Kristen Gremillion
Dawn Smith Jordan
Jordan Taylor Cunningham

The Director would like to thank the following for lots of things:

Jessieh Johnson-Cunningham
Robert Richardson
