

GALLEY

Service with a snarl

The purpose of this galley is to question the relationship between the students and the co-op store. Does the co-op personnel feel it is doing the students a favor by allowing them to buy books and supplies ? I think there should be a more cordial relationship between the students and the staff, not only of the co-op, but also of such facilities as the Library and the snack bar. The hostile situation I found is typical of what many students have experienced. This same condition is found right up through the "hierarchy" to the administration.

I concede that Bennington will probably never be known as the "friendly college", but I do think that it is in no way petty to bring this matter to the attention of the community.
