

sponsored by bennington college social science

amber
benezra

thursday may 8 2014
7:00 pm eac 1

the
BIG
and small
of microbes

scales of meaning between bodily bacteria and global malnutrition

Amber Benezra is a Mellon Sawyer Postdoctoral Fellow in Anthropology at NYU. Drawing together the sharp insights of feminism, the startling work of microbes, and the collaborative capacities of ethnography, Amber's scholarship is a timely exploration of how the sciences, broadly understood, might better engage pressing public problems. She is currently working on a book titled "Anthrobiota: Human-Microbe Relationships at the Edge of Biological Science."

this event is free and open to the public • for more information visit www.bennington.edu