The Bennington Theatre Studio announces the abandonment for this year of its Theatre Guild subscription plan. In view of the many enterprises to which people will wish to contribute during the year, the Studio is suspending its membership drive so that the amount of the membership fee, small as it is, may be diverted to more pressing purposes.

The Studio will present its usual schedule of productions in December, March and June, without admission charge. The December production will include three one-act plays: "The House with the Column" by Luigi Pirandello, directed by Francis Fergusson, with setting and lighting by Arch Lauterer, and a cast including Valerie Pottberg, Marjorie Handwerk, Ruth Miller, Jacqueline Paul, Sara Jane Troy, Nika Pleshkoff, Joseph M. Dixon, Edward Glass, Ray Malon, Bernard Tone; "The Happy Journey" by Thornton Wilder, directed by Joseph M. Dixon, designed by Mary Somers Wood, and with a cast including Elisabeth James, Ann Mills, Irene Crosby, Joan Merriss, Paul Rockwell, and Ray Malon. The third offering will be a scene from G. B. Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion", directed by
