

U.N. Delegates Discuss International Women's Issues in CAPA

APRIL 7, 2017

Bennington's Center for the Advancement of Public Action (CAPA) hosted a talk by two United Nations delegates on women's empowerment and the changing role of women in the workplace.

Chulamanee Chartsuwan, ambassador and deputy permanent representative from Thailand, and Fabian Garcia, a delegate from Eduacor, discussed the two-week United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, along with issues in their home countries regarding gender equality and other ongoing social problems.

The event was a collaborative between the Grace Initiative and CAPA.
