Director's Note//////////////////////////////////// [title of show], at its heart, deals with the creative process and the friendships, insecurities, and courage that result.
I feel like I've said this more times in the past five weeks than I ever could have imagined. However, I feel the messages of this show now more than ever. Working on this show has forced myself, my cast, and my team to struggle with our own vampires, working our best to put as much of ourselves into this production as we can. In many ways, the production process is as self referential as the show itself: the material deals with creativity, friendships, courage, and vampires while you face these same things throughout the process. I hope that for all of you, you see your own work and your own lives in the journeys of these characters. I hope that you are able to grapple with your own vampires and conquer them. You are your work, whether it's in the arts, sciences, or humanities.
We are all in this together. Never forget that. Besides, wouldn't you rather be nine people's favorite thing than a hundred people's ninth favorite thing?
