Dear Robert Huot,

Thank you for your letter. I'm sorry that things got so confused. Both Dan Cameron and I did as much research as we could and we were told that WAR was a collaboration between you and Robert Morris. As you could imagine, it was a difficult show to organize. A couple of times we resorted to putting collaborations on a wall with one of the collaborators. Other examples are "Word Words," which was a collaboration between Yvonne Rainer and Steve Paxton, and "Lecture Demonstration," which was done by James Waring and John Herbert McDowell.

Right now all the photos we used in the exhibit are crated and waiting to be shipped to England in late summer. Dan will return your photo (and we'll use a copy) at his earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Wendy Perron
