LILLIAN FREUNDLICH, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, has been active performing and teaching in the New York area since her debut in 1941. She premiered the Sonata of Leon Kirchner (presently Professor of Music at Harvard University) in New York and has also appeared there with the Wolff Chamber Players. Mrs. Freundlich is a graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music and later attended the Juilliard Graduate School on a Fellowship. Her teachers have been Dr. Frank Shaw, Alexander Siloti, Josef and Rosina Lhevinne and Edward Steuermann. Mrs. Freundlich is associated with her husband in his present Master Class in Piano on the Bennington campus and has also appeared with him in recitals of music for four hands at one piano. She plans another New York recital for next season.
