GALLEY

O Tempera, C Mores

We have recently been disturbed by rumors of dissatisfaction among the student constituency with the failure of the college administration to recognize changing patterns of sexual behavior.

We agree that open discussion would be valuable, and complete information should be available to all students.

In times past certain courses were given, such as Mrs. DeGray's Marriage and the Family and Mr. Smith's course for those who were planning marriage in the near future, and to these we both, on occasion, were invited. In these courses many problems were discussed freely, but this was before the Era of the Pill.

Every few years until recently there has been at the college a series of evening meetings on sex related subjects. We feel it is time to again do something constructive, either by providing outside lecturers or open discussion or both.

We have always talked with the individuals who have come to us for private counseling and have, to the best of our knowledge, satisfied their individual requests. We know there are others, equally troubled and questioning, who would prefer a general discussion.

We solicit help from the rest of the college community in setting up some program in the near future.
